I am thoroughly enjoying my time studying Law in Sheffield due to the wide range of modules available and amount of sporting opportunities on offer. Since starting my degree, I have been sponsored by a partner at the international law firm White and Case LLP, hopefully allowing me to pursue my career aspirations as a solicitor or barrister. I have also successfully applied for the pro-bono scheme FreeLaw, enabling me to work with solicitors, giving free legal advice to people and businesses in the Sheffield community.

I am currently a member of the Edward Bramley Law Society alongside playing for the Law football team and training with the university triathlon squad.

In the 3rd year of my degree, I have a compulsory year abroad studying law and potentially a foreign language in any university associated with Sheffield – hopefully in either Italy, France or Sweden.
