I'm having a great time at Nottingham University so far. I've been impressed with both the social and academic opportunities here. I've joined the Labour students and pub quiz societies and have also been to some socials with the maths society. Everything seems a lot less formal than I had expected. I'm not sure what my plans are for the future so for now I'm just focusing on my current modules. Hopefully I will gravitate towards a certain area of mathematics to study in more depth during my final years here.
