English

Since leaving Carmel, I have gone on to study English at Corpus Christi College, University of Cambridge. The first term has been wonderfully challenging and incredibly fun. The freedom I am given to explore my course and think about texts in a completely new way has been very enjoyable. I particularly found that the subject-specific extracurricular activities offered at Carmel were most useful in developing a wider love for a subject, which in turn encouraged success and engagement academically. I have plenty of opportunities here to pursue a wide range of activities between work, and I am looking forward to engaging even further with all aspects of literature.
