French and Spanish

I'm currently studying French and Spanish at Durham University, which I'm really enjoying! Whilst challenging at times, I love the classes and find the reading very engaging. To balance study time with my free time, I've taken up rowing and yoga. I've also joined societies such as the French Society and Heads Up - Durham's own Mental Health Charity. I've been allocated a leading position as a Mental Health Advocate for Study Love Durham; a positivity project offering student support whenever needed. Alongside that, I've also become a blogger for Student Minds. I recently got a job as a Student Ambassador for the Times at Durham, giving me the experience and opportunities need to pursue my dream job in journalism.
