STUDENT GUIDE TO REGULATIONS AND POLICIES
UNDERGRADUATE
Welcome

Welcome! As a student at Holy Cross College or Carmel College, you will be studying for a degree of Liverpool Hope University, delivered by University staff. As Pro Vice-Chancellor (Student Life and Learning), I have responsibility for the whole student experience, from Induction and Registration to Graduation and beyond into your new careers and employment.

We are working hard to ensure that right from the outset, you receive a friendly welcome to Liverpool Hope University and also all the information and support you need. We have put together this guide and our webpages to provide you with as much information as possible to help you make a successful and enjoyable transition to the Network of Hope community, which binds our institutions together.

Each section within this guide provides a link to a full document. By registering at Liverpool Hope University, you undertake to abide by all of our regulations, policies and procedures in relation to both academic and other provision, so it is important that you read this guide.

In addition, the University has developed the Hope Charter. The Hope Charter sets out the expectations and responsibilities both of the University to each student and of each student to the University. It also sets out the responsibilities of the Students’ Union to both individual students and to the Student Body as a whole. The Charter focuses on the student journey and reflects the expectations of both Students and the University at each stage of this journey. The Charter is underpinned by the commitment of students and staff of the University to the Mission and Values of Hope. You can read the Hope Charter at www.hope.ac.uk/gateway/students/studentadministration/thehopecharter

If you have any problems understanding any of these regulations, policies or procedures or if you require help or more information, you can contact us on 0151 291 3813 or gateway@hope.ac.uk. Alternatively, you can call into the Gateway Building and speak to any of our staff on the service desk or drop into my office to talk to me in person.

Pro Vice-Chancellor Student Life & Learning
The University and your College may have to amend its regulations and policies from time to time, and the webpages will be kept up-to-date to reflect this. If we amend anything that materially impacts on your study, we will let you know and we may ask you to be involved in a consultation process.

Understanding Your Undergraduate Degree

Guides to the regulations governing each undergraduate degree can be found at the “Understanding your Degree” page on the website:

www.hope.ac.uk/gateway/students/studentadministration/understandingyourdegree

The guides summarise key rules about how our degrees are structured and how you will be assessed. You are expected to be familiar with this page, and to use it as a first port of call in the event of a query.

Structure of your Undergraduate Degree

If you are a full time undergraduate student, you will normally take two equally weighted blocks of study in each of the first, second and third years of your degree (usually referred to as Levels C, I and H respectively).

If you are a Combined Honours student at Level C, you must achieve an aggregate mark of 40 for your level of study in order to progress and complete your course. At all Levels, you must have attempted all formal assessments. If you are a Combined Honours student at Level I or H you must pass both academic subjects in order to progress to the next level of study and complete your course.

In the final year, you will take either a single Dissertation or two smaller Research Projects; some courses have a modified structure; it is your responsibility to find how your own degree is structured.

Passing each Year and Completing your Undergraduate Degree

At the start of each year, you will be told exactly what assessments you will need to undertake for each block during that year, and how each assessment contributes to the aggregate mark. All years of study contribute to the final degree classification, but particular emphasis is placed on performance in the final year.

Attendance at Timetabled Sessions

The University requires that Network of Hope students attend all ‘face to face sessions’. As a blended learning model is used it is also compulsory that you engage, in a timely manner, with online tasks and activities which may be in the form of discussion fora or other engagement tasks. Unsurprisingly, research shows that there is a clear correlation between high attendance rates and student performance in assessments. The University requires that attendance at all sessions is compulsory, and that you are to be available during all term-time weeks. If you are unable to attend a session, you must contact your tutor to explain why. Note that attendance is monitored and the University reserves the right to withdraw you from your course if you are not able to provide evidence which explains repeated absence.

Students should also be aware that there are specific attendance requirements on some courses and that they must comply with these as well as the general expectations of the University.

Conduct of Examinations

All students at Liverpool Hope University are assessed in part by formal examinations. It is essential that you familiarise yourself with the University’s rules governing the conduct of examinations, and that you read your personal examination timetable carefully when it is sent to you each spring.

The rules governing the conduct of examinations are emailed to each student before the start of each examination period, and cover matters such as when you must arrive, what you can take in to the room, and how you notify the University if you are unable to attend.

Coursework Submission
All students studying for a Liverpool Hope University degree are assessed in part by coursework. In almost all cases, coursework is submitted electronically, via “Moodle”. Detailed guidance about how to submit will be given to you at the start of your course, and it is important to follow the guidance precisely. Work submitted after a deadline without an extension or deferral having been granted is awarded a mark of zero.

Resits and Retakes
If you fail one or more blocks of study you will normally get an opportunity to make good the fail. Depending upon the severity of the fail, you might be asked either to undertake further assessment in the form of a supplementary examination or to retake the full block the following year.

Opportunities for resits and retakes are not automatic. In particular, the University expects students to attend classes and otherwise engage with their studies, and students’ compliance with this expectation is closely monitored. If, following due warnings, you do not attend/engage sufficiently, the University may require you to withdraw or be interrupted from your studies immediately or deny you the opportunity, if you fail, to resit or retake. Full details can be found at the “Understanding your Degree” page under the Your Degree tab.

Cheating and Academic Misconduct
The University has clear policies on what counts as cheating and other forms of academic misconduct, how suspected cases are investigated, and the penalties that will be applied.

Of course, the vast majority of students do not engage in any misconduct. However, it is important that you understand what the University expects, so that you do not unwittingly fall under suspicion.

The “Level C” guide applies to first year students and the “Levels I & H” guide applies to other undergraduate students.
Illness and Other Personal Circumstances

The University understands that a student’s ability to study might sometimes be affected by illness or other personal circumstances beyond the student’s control. The University has a number of concessions that can be offered in such cases, and there are clear procedures for applying for each type of concession. If you think you might be entitled to a concession, consult a Support Tutor in your College.

Fit to Sit

The University has a “fit to sit” policy, which means that if you submit work despite your circumstances, you will be deemed to be declaring yourself fit to be assessed, and so your work will always be marked strictly on its merits. Similarly, illness and other personal circumstances are not taken into account when determining degree classifications.

Full details can be found at the “Understanding your Degree” page under the Your Degree tab.

Academic Appeals

The University has a range of procedures to ensure that fair and equitable decisions are made about marks and grades, and the eligibility of a student to progress through their course or obtain a specified degree classification, or be given an opportunity to redeem a fail.

Academic appeals are not allowed if they merely challenge the academic judgment of the examiners. However, students may occasionally have grounds for appeal, if they feel either that there has been a material irregularity on the part of the University or exceptionally that personal circumstances at the time of assessment, which they could not divulge, were of significance to the final outcome.
