"Upon leaving Carmel College, I was lucky enough to pursue a Law Degree at the University of Oxford. I absolutely loved my degree, and I am so grateful to Carmel College for encouraging me to apply! During my time at University, I was President of the Oxford Women in Law Student Society, participated in mooting and also took part in various Access to Oxford Schemes to encourage and support state school students in their applications.

I am currently undertaking the Bar Practice Course (BPC) at the University of Law as an Astbury Scholar, courtesy of the Honourable Society of The Middle Temple. Once I have completed the BPC, I am going to complete a Masters in Comparative and European Private Law at the University of Edinburgh. From there, I plan to secure pupillage to become a Commercial Barrister."
