

Criminology

An exciting subject which incorporates aspects of Law, Sociology and Psychology, and will allow you to understand crime and deviance in detail

Learn about the impact crime and criminal behaviour have on society

Understand different theories of crime, analyse real and contemporary case studies, and study the inner workings of the criminal justice system

CRIMINAL

YOU WILL STUDY

- Changing awareness of crime – study various types of crime, how crime is portrayed in the media, and how campaigns have led to changes in the law
- Criminological theories – learn about various criminological theories into why people commit crime
- Crime scene to courtroom – find out what happens once a crime is detected, how a scene is analysed, and the trial process that leads to a verdict
- Crime scene and punishment – learn how different organisations work to prevent and protect

PROGRESSION

There are many progression routes for which a qualification in Criminology would be useful due to the skills you will develop. Lots of our students go on to University, whilst others gain an apprenticeship or begin employment.

Imagine what you can become

Police Officer → Prison Officer

My Experience

“Criminology is my favourite subject that I am studying here as it is extremely interesting and is different to anything I have studied before, which is why I am hoping to study Law with Criminology at University.

You learn about the most exciting criminal cases, as well as having the opportunity to go on trips and listen to guest speakers.

Studying this at Carmel has definitely helped with my decision to study Criminal Law in the future and be a criminal lawyer.”
