My time at Carmel was filled with milestones, friendships and so many brilliant memories. I was lucky enough to be taught by several fantastic teachers, whose words I still refer to in my professional career. I was always encouraged to strive for more in my studies, and supported through many extra curricular endeavours.

“I graduated from the University of Sheffield with a first class degree in Journalism Studies, and was lucky enough to find a brilliant job before I had even finished my degree. I work for C40 Cities, a global climate leadership organisation, as a Social Media Officer in London. I manage C40’s social channels and produce content for a multitude of platforms. My day to day can vary from writing content for high level politicians, to commissioning poetry, it’s really exciting to be part of such a creative, driven team and there’s always something new to get involved in.

My advice to current students would be that your time will fly by, but the opportunities you have access to now are endless – try something new outside of your A Levels, challenge yourself, and make use of the great advice the wonderful staff can afford you.”
