There are many paths to where you want to go, and finding them may require a slight change in perspective; failure is a part of growth, try to keep your determination through those times; constant introspection is key to success.

“I have been in the in the RAF now for over 4 years and was lucky enough to work on Typhoon fighter jets as an Aircraft Maintenance Mechanic early on in his career. I am now a fully qualified Aircraft Technician specialised in mechanical systems.

I’m currently 15 months into a 5-year tour on the Royal Air Force Aerobatic Team (The Red Arrows). For the upcoming 2021 display season I will be a member of the Dye Team, which is a coveted position allowing us to follow the aircraft all over the country (and world). Our primary role is to ensure all our jets are filled with dye to allow a great display of red, white and blue smoke for the public.”
